Scott Cook is currently in his 18th year as an Associate Athletic Trainer at James Madison University in Harrisonburg, VA. He received his BS in Secondary General Science Education, with a Minor in Athletic Training at West Virginia University. He received a MS degree in Higher Education Administration from Purdue University. He has previously served as an Assistant Athletic Trainer at the University of Notre Dame and the University of Illinois.

Scott is currently in in his third year serving as the MAATA Annual Meeting and Clinical Symposium Meeting Planner. He has served on the Indiana Athletic Trainer's Association (IATA) Public Relations Committee and most recently served as the Vendor Coordinator for the Annual Meeting and Clinical Symposium for the Virginia Athletic Trainer's Association.

He has made numerous Athletic Training presentations at the local and state levels. He and his wife Jini have a daughter Peyton and a son Wyatt and reside in Harrisonburg, VA